Stamford, Conn. April 23, 2026 – Cohen Veterans Network (CVN), a global not-for-profit integrated network of mental health clinics for service members, veterans, and their families, marked the grand opening of its first mental health clinic in Kansas earlier today. The Steven A. Cohen Military Family Clinic at Centerstone, Kansas supported by the Robert R. McCormick Foundation has officially opened its doors to provide high-quality, accessible care to post-9/11 veterans, service members, and their families across the state.

The celebratory event brought together nearly 100 local and state leaders, government officials, military mental health experts, business leaders and community members. Featured speakers included Dr. Anthony Hassan, president and CEO of Cohen Veterans Network; Timothy Knight, president and CEO of the Robert R. McCormick Foundation; Matt Hardy, market CEO of Centerstone; Col. Travis Habhab, executive director of military and veterans affairs at Kansas State University; Manhattan Mayor Susan E. Adamchak; and Katie Hund, clinic director of the Cohen Clinic at Centerstone in Manhattan.

“We are thrilled to celebrate our grand opening in Manhattan as we expand access to critical mental health services for military families across Kansas,” said Dr. Anthony Hassan, president and CEO of Cohen Veterans Network. “Our support from the Robert R. McCormick Foundation and partnership with Centerstone are instrumental to making this clinic a reality, enabling us to provide veterans, service members and their families with immediate access to the mental health care they deserve.”

More than 181,000 veterans, service members, and military family members in Kansas are eligible for care at the clinic. Services are available in-person and via CVN Telehealth, face-to-face video therapy. The clinic treats a wide range of mental health concerns including depression, anxiety, military transition challenges, adjustment issues, PTSD, anger, grief and loss, family issues, relationship challenges, and children’s behavioral problems. In addition to therapy, the clinic provides comprehensive case management services to support clients with social drivers of health, including employment, finances, housing, and more.

The Cohen Clinic at Centerstone, Kansas is principally funded by the McCormick Foundation and philanthropist Steven A. Cohen. Colonel Robert R. McCormick served with the 1st Infantry Division in France during WWI, which shaped his deep respect for servicemembers and veterans. The McCormick

Foundation continues his commitment to those who wear the uniform. Today, the Foundation invests in the Fort Riley community to support the 1st Infantry Division service members, veterans, and their families.

“We are proud to partner with Cohen Veterans Network and Centerstone to launch this essential resource for families of the 1st Infantry Division and other members of Kansas’ military community,” said Timothy P. Knight, president and CEO of the Robert R. McCormick Foundation. “The opening of this clinic reflects a shared commitment to strengthening support for military families, honoring Colonel McCormick’s legacy of service to members of the U.S. military.”

The Kansas clinic marks an expansion of CVN’s partnership with Centerstone, which also operates Cohen Clinics in Clarksville, Tenn.; Fayetteville, N.C.; Jacksonville, Fla., and Hinesville, Ga.

“At the heart of this clinic is a dedicated team of clinicians and staff who are deeply committed to serving military families in the Fort Riley community and beyond,” said Matt Hardy, market CEO of Centerstone. “Today’s celebration is just the beginning. We are building a lasting presence in Kansas where our team’s expertise and compassion will continue to meet the needs of veterans and military families as they evolve.”

The Cohen Clinic at Centerstone, Kansas expands the network to 24 Cohen Clinics, serving clients across 21 states and internationally. Since its inception in 2016, the network has provided care to more than 100,000 clients in over 898,000 clinical sessions.

The Cohen Clinic at Centerstone, Kansas is located near Fort Riley at 1960 Kimball Avenue, Suite 375, Manhattan, Kan. 66502. More information is available at the clinic website.
